

Le Roosevelt was once a simple fishermen's house nestled in the dunes. From 1942 to June 1944, it served as an office for the Todt Organization. Attached to the house, a bunker likely served as a telephone exchange for the German army. It later housed the headquarters of the U.S. Army's First Engineer Brigade.

The bunker, from June to November 1944, was used as the communication center of the U.S. Navy, handling traffic between the fleet and the front lines. The signatures of these men on the bunker walls remain as a living testimony to their presence over 70 years ago. These 39 radio operators were members of the N.O.I.C. (Naval Officer In Charge) and belonged to the Command Task Group 127.2.4.
